Headline:
Becoming cloudy with showers. Strong winds.

Today:
A clear start for many with some bright spells of sunshine. Cloud and showers soon moving southeast across the region, these merging into longer spells of rain. Strong winds may ease a little. Feeling rather cold. Maximum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Tonight:
Remaining largely windy and cloudy this evening with outbreaks of light rain or showers. Winds easing overnight as cloud clears from the west. Becoming dry but cold. Minimum temperature 1 deg C (34 deg F).

Thursday:
A mostly dry and bright start, though cold. Winds will be mostly light before a band of rain and strong winds approaches from the west later. Maximum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Mostly dry and clear Friday with a moderate northwesterly breeze. A dry start Saturday but rain arriving from the west later as winds strengthen. Likely cloudy with patchy rain Sunday.
